

How Good Is Your Language?

This table is designed to help you tell us what level you are currently at when discussing which course option is right for you. At the beginning of your course your tutor will give you a short assessment to ensure that the course focuses on the right topics and level for you.

	Level	Description	Common European Framework levels
0	Beginner	You have no knowledge of the language	-
1	Elementary	You understand a few phrases but still have difficulty in any real communication and make frequent mistakes	A1
2	Low Intermediate	You understand most conversations spoken slowly and distinctly. You have fair control of structure and pronunciation. Your vocabulary is still limited	A2
4	Intermediate	You mostly get the general sentence structure correct but sometimes the meaning is not clear. Your vocabulary is limited but you can take part, sometimes hesitatingly, in social conversations.	B1
5	High Intermediate	You can read and write fairly easily, making occasional errors. You can understand most conversations and can talk on familiar subjects at normal speed. You can take part in conversations effectively.	B2
6	Advanced	You can read and write with ease, making errors in complex / technical forms. You can understand most conversations / lectures at normal speed, but specialised idiomatic usage is still difficult. You can speak effectively in most common situations.	C1, C2
7	Proficient	You can handle most practical and social situations required for good communication. You can speak fluently but make occasional errors and can benefit from practice in idiomatic use of the language. You can read and write effectively for most purposes.
